Massachusetts for McGovern; Pennsylvania to Humphrey; Muskie Seen Ready to Quit

By David S. Broder and Stephen Isaacs WASHINGTON, April 25 (WP).—Sen. George McGovern of South Sakota and Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, the pre-election svorites, swept to victories in separate Democratic presidential wimaries today.

Sen. Edmund Musicia of Maine, the favorite for the nomination a few months ago, ran poorly in these two primaries, and the Musical Broadcasting System tonight quoted his aide as saying that tomorrow morning he will withdraw from the race.

Sen. Musicia canceled a scheduled trip to Toledo, Ohio, where he was to campaign for the Ohio primary next week. In the Pennsylvania primary, won by Sen. Humphrey with 15 percent of the vote, Sen. Musicia finished fourth. He and Alamana Gov. George Wallace, who was second, and Sen. McGovern, who was third, each received about a fifth of the vote and the lift grange between Gov. Wellage's telly and Sen. Musicia's was less.

difference between Gov. Wallace's tally and Sen. Muskie's was less han 12,000 of the 1.3 million ballots cast. Sen. Henry Jackson of Nashington, who had not campaigned at all, was fifth.

Kennedy picking up close to 2,000 write-in votes. Massachusetts and Pennsylvania use a complicated two-ballot system, choosing committed slates of party convention delegates in addition to the popular vote for the candidates themselves.

Sen. McGovern's smashing Massachusetts victory won him all the state's 103 delegate votes, thus making it look now like a McGovern-Humphrey fight for the nomination at Miami Beach in July. In Pennsylvania, Sen. Humphrey picked up 57 of the state's 137 delegates. Sen. McGovern got 37. Sen. Muskie took 29 and Gov. Wallace two. The remainder were uncommitted. Wallace two. The remainder were uncommitted.

Sen. Humphrey's victory in Pennsylvania was his first electoral triumph in a primary, although he is making his third try for President Nixon had an easy time of it in both states' Repub-lican primaries with nominal opposition from liberal Rep. Paul Mc-Closkey of California (who has formally withdrawn from contention), and conservative Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio. In Pennsylvania, Sen. Hum-machine of Gov. Milton Shapp and the Philadelphia Democratic machine—but got only about 21 percent of the vote.

Sen. McGovern had a yigorous organization but spent little ime in the state personally so 2e could concentrate on whipping Sen. Muskie in Massachusetts.

Gov. Wallace made but two prief trips to Pennsylvania and had no organization in the state, but it gav. him second place.

Sen. McGovern took Boston by 1 two-to-one margin over Sen. Muskie, in winning his second orimary of the year. In putting ogether back-to-back triumphs n Wisconsin three weeks ago and Massachusetts yesterday, Sen. McGovern bolstered his own hances for the nomination and ent Sen. Muskie's fortunes skid-

Sen. Humphrey was third and Joy. Wallace fourth in Massahusetts. Sen. Humphrey made 10 appearances in the state, and 30v. Wallace was there only once. Sen. Today, it is the Nixon administration's assessment that China's self-interest, exemplified by the President's ground-breaking talks in Peking in February, and U.S. troop with-drawals from South Vieinam have helped induce the Chinese to dilute their original commitment to prolonging the Vietnamese conflict.

North Vietnam, however, granted no "veto power" either to the Russians or to the Chinese over Hanoi's decisions in the war, all U.S. intelligence experts agreed in the NSC study. The Central Intelligence Agency noted that Hanoi has balanced adroitly between its two chief allies, and "in competing for influence [in Hanoi] Peking and Moscow tend to cancel out each other." PARIS, April 26 (WP).-A toris agreement emerged all but of-ficially today tracing North Viet-namese agreement to hold new secret peace talks in return for American and South Vietnamese willingness to resume semi-public negotiating sessions tomorrow after a month's interruption.

Less than 24 hours after President Nixon announced allied agreement to resume the semipublic weekly ralks, North Victnam signaled its willingness to produce Le Duc Tho, the Hanci Politburo member associated with all previous secret negotiations.

Emerging from a meeting with Prench Poreign Llinkeer Maurice Schumann, Muan Thuy, the tirular head of the North Vietnamese peace talks delegation, fold newsmen: "It is very possible that Le Duc Tho will return to Paris in the next few days.

Mr. Thuy all but officially confirmed Hanoi's willingness to hold new secret talks by remarking that such negotiations could be discussed once the semi-public sessions resumed.

To no one's surprise, in light of their constant demands, both the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations agreed to hold the sion tomorrow when a South liet-namese liaison officer officially informed them by telephone this morning of President Nation's decisian.

Veteran observers of the neace talks were not suprised by State Department suggestions, voiced by spokesman Charles W. Bray. that the resumption of the formal semi-public perotiations might be a one-shot affair unless the Communists agreed to "negotiate seri-

EEC in Discord On Travelers' Tax-Free Goods

LUXEMBOURG, April 25 (Reuters).—European Economic Community foreign ministers failed today to agree on a plan to grant travelers bigger tax-free allowances inside the EEC, informed sources said here.

Under proposals from the EEC Executive Commission, the import allowance would have gone from 875 to $125 for ordinary goods, and up by 50 percent for luxury items such as tobacco, alcohol and perfume. This would have meant that a Frenchman traveling to Belgium or Italy could have taken 300 cigarettes and one and a half liters of cognac with him instead of 200 cigarettes and one liter. The commission had been pressing for the increases as a step toward removing frontier controls between EEC member states and giving their nationals a greater sense of belonging to a single community.

But the ministers disagreed over French demands that a system of checks be set up to guard against abuse of the system.

U.S. Agrees to Resume Talks; Secret Meetings Expected

traditional criticism of the United States, Mr. Thuy's remarks strongly suggested that some commitment, perhaps only in-direct, would also be forthcoming on their willingness to hold secret talks. In itself, that could more than satisfy American demands "serious" negoțiations and provide a major face-saving inducement for the United States to overlook its previous demands for an end to the Communist offensive in South Vietnam as the price for resuming the formal weekly talks.

Mutual Satisfaction Stripped of the often oratorical conditions laid down in public by both sides in the past month, there were ample surface reasons for mutual satisfaction at such an outcome Barring unforeseen develop-

From 1968 until last fall, when they collapsed amid the mutual recrimination revealed by the President in January, secret talks have allowed both sides to make whatever slight progress has been achieved in narrowing still gaping differences.

Indeed, one of President Nixon's reasons for unilaterally suspending the stalemated semi-public talks on March 23 was the hope that North Vietnam could persuaded to resume the secret negotiations.

The United States now has dropped its public insistence that even the semi-public talks could not be resumed while the Communists pursued their current offensive and spurned "serious" negotiations in Paris.

But remarks to this effect by Secretary of State William P. Rogers. Defense Secretary Melvin Laird and U.S. delegation chief William J. Porter were made right up until yesterday when Mr. Nixon spoke shortly after the White House disclosed Mr. Kissinger's secret Moscow

Verbal Escalation

North Vietnam last week went through a similar verbal escalation — and de-escalation — of its conditions for resuming both semipublic and secret negotiations. The day after U.S. planes bombed Hanoi and Haiphong April 16, Mr. Thuy offered to resume secret talks, but on the condition that the United States "simultaneously" stop bombing North Vietnam and agree to resume the semi-public negotiating sessions.

But by last Thursday, Mr. Thuy dropped the demand that the United States stop bombing North resuming both semi-public and secret peace negotiations. On the very day Mr. Kissinger began his Moscow conversations, Mr. Thuy said that if the United States agreed to resume the weekly sessions, then Hanoi would no longer demand prior cessation of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and new private talks could be en-

At first glance, it was that Hanoi formulation which met earlier U.S. demands that the formal weekly sessions could re-sume only when the Communists stopped using them for "propa-ganda" and proved their desire for "ser!ous" negotiations.

For the record, Mr. Thuy told newsmen that there had been no secret meeting between Americans and North Vietnamese in the last 10 days, the period more than amply covering Mr. Kissinger's most recent unannounced absence from Washington.

Soviets Gave 'Critical' Help To Launch '68 Paris Talks

tionships since 1969. In a State Department assess-ment in the NSC report, dated Feb. 21, 1969, Secretary of State

William P. Rogers stated: "We attribute more significance than does the embassy [the U.S. Embassy in Saigon1 to Soviet efforts to be helpful in moving the negotiations ahead, and we think the evidence that they did so is quite clear. What is not clear is whether it was necessary for them to bring pressure on the North Vietnamese to bring about a compromise."

The State Department said that North Vietnam, retaining "firm control over the own war strategy." may "at times have employed the Soviets as intermediaries to conyey positions upon which they had already decided themselves, so that they would not have to 'lose face' by making the concessions directly to us."

"In dealing with the North Vietnamese," the State Department section of the report said, "the Soviets have experienced the full degree of Hanol's ideological rigidity and distrust of the West, and on occasion they have privately deplored excessive North action in helping to launch the Paris talks in 1968-69 were unofficially reported in 1969-1970, and unofficially acknowledged by the Russians. But publicly the Soviet Union denied that it had any involvement in one of the most important of those actions -the disputed "understandings" that accompanied the halt in the American bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1, 1968.

This review reports more explicitly than any other disclosure that the Soviet Union participated in late 1968 in private Paris negotiations that produced the disputed "understandings" for the Johnson administration's haltin the bombing of North Viet-

The Russian intermediaries were Ambassador Valerian Zorin, and the minister of the Soviet Embassy in Paris, Valentin Oberemko, the study shows. North Vietnam repeatedly has denied there were any "understandings." -

This dispute has rebounded into the headlines with the U.S. charge, and the North Vietnamese denial, that the current Communist offensive, launched March 30 across the Demilitarized Zone, is a "blatant violation" of the 1968 "understandings." North Vietnam insisted the 1968 bomb halt was "unconditional," but American officials said that the United States set out its terms for maintaining the bombing halt, and these were clearly understood by the North Vietnamese envoys. Thus, the euphemistic term "understandings" was used. Defense Secre-tary Meivin R. Laird testified last week that the language of the "understandings" was actually "negotiated" with the Communists in the secret 1968 meetings in Paris. 'Assertive Phase' The 1969 NSC study reveals: "With the beginning of the Paris

"When the talks on procedural arrangements were deadlocked in January, the Soviets suggested the formula on seating arrangements which proved acceptable to all sides."

That was the agreement that broke a deadlock over the shape of the conference table for broadening-the Paris peace talks to four teams, adding South Victoria and the Communists National Liberation Front to the conference, along with the United States and North Vietnam.

Virtually from that time on each side in the talks has accused the other of falling to negotiate "seriously," which was the States in halting the bombing of North Vietnam.

In its early 1969 report, however, the State Department said that in light of the Communist objectives at Paris, "some of the same pressures which drove them to negotiate will also drive them to modify their own terms and conditions over time." Best Possible Moment "The Communists will want to pick the best possible moment for compromise, when we have yield-ed on the things which they consider vital but before they themselves have had to give up anything of critical importance. This will require delicate and sensitive

"It is thus not correct to say that the Communists are not negotiating 'seriously.' They are negotiating seriously, in the sense that negotiations are an important element in their strategy, and that they would like to see the war end by a negotiated settle-ment favorable to themselves But the required evolution is their position will come slowly."

What the Communists were described as seeking was "a U.S. action by Hanoi, and indicated withdrawal, the installation of 8 potentially Communist government in the South, and the opportunity to continue the political struggle in the South."

On Value of Young Warns Moon Rocks

Capt. Young, Comdr. Thomas

K. Mattingly and Lt. Col. Charles

M. Duke were on target for a parachute landing at 2:44 p.m. EST (1944 GMT) tomorrow in the Pacific Ocean, 1,500 miles south of Hawaii. Mr. England, who is a geophysicist, told the astronauts that scientists have changed their ideas on the makeup of the moon landing area and are beginning to inink that Capt. Young and Col. Duke may have sampled rocks splashed out of the primitive lunar crust by the tremendous impact that created the Great Sea of Rains basin. Geologists had thought that the Geologists nad thought Cayley Plains were a relatively simple volcanic lava flow. 'Just Tee Seen'

'T'd like to wait until we get all the data in and take a look at it." Capt. Young said. "It's ! just too soon on hearsay and not having the real evidence and not having all the data analyzed."

The astronauts began their day at 8:32 a.m. (1332 GMT) and Capt. Young reported that their sleep during the night was "good to better." He also said the ship's zsupply of peanut butter mysteriously vanished when the pilots stowed film cassettes in a food

-compartment "We're low in the peanut butter locker right now," he said.

The spaceship was slowly picking up speed on its last leg toward earth, accelerating under the pull of gravity. The recovery ship, USS Ticonderoga, was on station in the Pacific and the weather forecast was excellent.

"That's the best news we've heard in a long time," said Capt. Young of the forecast.

Scientists Get Ready

As Apollo-16 approached earth with 245 pounds of lunar rock and soil samples, members of the preliminary analysis team at the lunar receiving laboratory here stepped up preparations to get an early idea of what Capt. Young and Col. Duke found in three days of moon exploration.

Dr. W.R. Muchlberger, the the astronauts could be bringing back "the real genesis rock" representing the primitive crust of the moon. The best bet, he said for such a samule are nieces the moonwalkers chipped from a huge boulder on the rim of North Ray Crater, the largest and deepest crater man has examined on the moon.

One result that already has farreaching implications is the astronauts' discovery of an imusually strong magnetic field at their lunar landing site. Dr. Palmer Dyal said this reinforced the controversial theory that the moon once had a molten core, since such an interior is needed to generate strong magnetic forces in a heavenly body.

During a televised news conference, Capt. Young admitted today that he and his crew had serious doubts about whether they would be able to land on the moon last Thursday after trouble aboard the command ship, Cas-

During the 20-minute press conference they were asked what operational difficulties, besides language, would have to be overcome in a proposed joint U.S.-Soviet manned space flight."

Capt. Young answered that "if language is a problem . . I'd be glad to learn Russian. And I'm sure Charlie and Ken feel the same way."

Capt. Young wound up the press conference by quoting René Descartes, the 17th-century

French philosopher and mathe-matician, after whom the highlands region they explored was named: "There is nothing so removed from us to be beyond our reach, or so hidden that we cannot "That's the story of our mission so far," he said.

This was brought out today in testimony by David Harrison, a staff investigator for the McKay Commission investigating the four-day Attica uprising.

Mr. Harrison said the rifles were Winchester-270s firing hunting bullets with high-expansion qualities similar to outlawed dumdum bullets.

The Army, he said, probibits the use of such bullets and instead uses full-jacketed bullets with limited expansion.

No full-jacketed ammunition is available for the 270 because it is designed as a hunting weapon and such bullets are banned by most states for hunting, he said.

The McKay Commission investigation showed that troopers and other law enforcement agencies used more than 400 firearms in the Sept. 13 assault on the Neither statement directly referred to Mr. Nixon's legislation. but his proposals of March 17 to place a moratorium on busing orders and follow it up with permanent restraints on busing clearly fell within the legislation the lawyers condemned. Some of the attorneys involved said both statements were directed at the President's legislation.

The revolt of the civil rights awyers, the second major one of the Nixon administration, posed problems for the White House:

• Their statement, presented to the congressional committees considering the President's legis-lation, added to a large volume of adverse testimony taken by the commuttees since the two adminstration bills were submitted.

 If the proposed moratorium were passed by Congress, the Civil Rights Division ordinarily would be in charge of enforcing it. But a number of the attorneys have been balking at intervening in the courts for stays of busing orders, pending congressional action on the legislation.

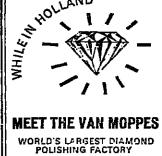

Sources in the Civil Rights Division said some of the dis-satisfaction stemmed from the fact that briefs in busing cases had been rewritten by superiors, and reviewed by the White House, in such a way that the lawyers felt the briefs to be more a political position than a legal doculess, it was unusual in Washington for a majority of a division to come out publicly against an administration policy that they were charged with enforcing.

The White House had no comment on the development and spokesmen for the Justice Department said they knew of no action planned against the attorneys. Nevertheless, there long has been a rift between the White House policymakers and the Civil Rights Division, composed largely of BELFAST, April 25 (UPI). The outlawed Irish Republican Army continued its campaign of violence today as it insisted on a voice in any peace talks in Northern Ireland.

A British Army spokesman reported two explosions and four sniper attacks.

Later, gunmen ambushed an army patrol in Beliast and an army spokesman said one soldier had been wounded.

Near Armagh, a soldier was killed and two were injured when their army truck overturned after the driver swerved to avoid a gang of youths hurling stones at the truck, the army said.

The militant Provisional wing of the IRA issued a statement demanding that it be represented at any talks designed to end 32 months of bloodshed which has claimed 316 lives in Northern Ireland's six counties.

"Those who have been actively engaged in spearheading the resistance will have to be represented at any genuine peace conference," the statement said.

It repeated the Provisional IRA's terms for ending its violence. These included immediate

Armor-Plated Beds for British Troops in Ulster

BELFAST, April 26 (Reuters).—British soldiers in Northern Ireland will soon be able to rest easier at nightin bulletproof beds.

An army spokesman said, "One of our units is housed in an old mill. The walls are extremely thin, and it is quite a regular occurrence for a sniper's bullet to enter one side of the room and whistle out the other."

The project, named "Operation Tronside," is being carried out by the Royal Engineers and consists of armorplate sides around the men's beds.

The troops did not return fire for fear of hitting shoppers, the spokesman said. The incident occurred near the spot where a 29year-old mother was killed six weeks ago during a battle between troops and gunmen

Later, an army patrol chased gunmen who fired on it a few blocks away. The troops blocked the gunmen's escape route, an army spokesman said, and the men jumped out of their car and exchanged fire with the soldiers, then fled on foot.

Arthur E. Summerfield, 73, Former Postmaster General

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., April 26 (AP).-Arthur E. Summerfield, 73, former U.S. postmaster general and a chairman of the Republican National Committee died today. Mr. Summerfield, a long-time power in national politics and those in his home state of Michigan, served as postmaster general during the presidency of the late Dwight D. Eisenhower, from 1952-1960. He held the GOP post in 1952 and also managed Gen. Eisenhower's presidential campaign.

His death occurred nearly two weeks after he entered Good Samaritan Hospital while vaca-tioning here. Hospital officials said he was suffering from double pneumonia, Arthur E. (Bud) Summerfield jr. reported his father's death.

Mr. Summerfield took an office boy's job in Flint. Mich., after leaving school at the age of 13. He opened a real estate office and an oil dealership after marrying in 1918, but it was with an automobile dealership he opened in 1929 that Mr. Summerfield prospered. The dealership became one of the nation's

Mr. Summerfield's participation in politics began when GOP presidential nominee Wendell L Willkie's campaigning in Flint in 1940 drew only a small crowd. With a few friends, Mr. Summerfield organized Mr. Willkie's Genesee County campaign and Mr. Willkie carried the county

In 1943, Mr. Summerfield was appointed finance director for the Michigan Republican Central Committee. He set up the so-called Summerfield Plan, which for the first time budgeted in advance GOP campaign expenditures.

He was elected to the Republican National Committee in 1944. In 1949, he was named executive chairman of the party's National Strategy Committee, but he resigned a year later.

After Mr. Summerfield delivered a bloc of Michigan votes to Gen. Eisenhower at the 1952 convention, he was named Republican national chairman. He directed Gen. Eisenhower's campaign, at the same time healing the wounds inflicted on the general's chief rival for the nomination, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio

With his election, Gen. Eisenhower named Mr. Summerfield postmaster general.

In his book, "U.S. Mail." Mr. Summerfield argued that the postal service "can and must be placed on a basis of paying its own wav."

However, he said, "it is unlikely to achieve this basis as long as it remains at the mercy of some members of the Congress who will use their power over it to suit their political ambitions and purposes.

Unions' Formula on Disputes has become a battleground between the Conservative govern. ment, intent on upholding the rule of law in industrial relations

Heath Promises to Consider

LONDON, April 26 (Reuters).-Prime Minister Edward Heath agreed tonight to consider tradeunion proposals for a new, independent conciliation procedure for labor disputes.

The proposals were presented at a meeting between Mr. Heath and leaders of the powerful Trades Union Congress.

Ostensibly the meeting was part of a series of top-level discussions on the economy. In fact, most of the agenda was abandoned as the union leaders voiced anger over new industrial-relations legislation that the Conservative government has used in current rail and dock disputes.

. Union leaders have been threatening to boycott procedures provided by the government's showpiece legislation, which provides for a compulsory cooling-off period in labor disputes and referral of issues to the newly formed Industrial Relations Court.

But tonight union representatives presented an alternative proposal for local conciliation panels to deal quickly with disputes The prime minister's office said Mr. Heath agreed to look into them and discuss them at a future meeting with union leaders, at an undetermined date.

Court Order The Industrial Relations Court last week ordered railmen to call off a slowdown that had disrupted the nation's train services for a week. It also fined a dockworkers' union for its action in a separate dispute. Railway chiefs and union spokesmen were expected to resume wage negotiations within a day or so during the temporary pause in the railway workers' slowdown. Travelers found trains running normally after exasperating delays and frustrations experienced during last week's work-to-rule and overtime ban, which caused widespread disruption of service.

Germany Grim and Anxious On Eve of Challenge to Brandt

(Continued from Page 1) Democratic Union submitted a no-confidence motion against the government, Under the 1949 constitution, such a motion calls for immediate replacement of the chancellor, the assumption being that the opposition has enough votes to achieve this.

The nominal reason offered by Mr. Barzel for his bid was the victory Sunday of his party in the state elections of Baden-Wuerttemberg, But, the issue on which he has been fighting the Brandt government almost since its inception is Mr. Brandt's policy of trying to normalize rela-tions with the Communist states of Eastern Europe.

Bonn's 1970 treatles with the Soviet Union and Poland were due for ratification votes next whether that schedule will be

The Bundestag, or lower house, spent the earlier part of today in lebate on the federal budget. Aside from early skirmishing, the tone was much more sober than previous confrontations in the Bundestag during the two and a half years of the Brandt administration.

Tt was as if nearly every politician here had been subjected to an ice-cold shower. Josef Ertl. the Free Democratic minister of agriculture, told the Bundestag he had been subjected to anonymous murder threats in the last two days. He warned against "a crisis of our state."

The Chancellor Brandt, in one of his most perspasive speeches, "rein in emotions, not allow yourself to be provoked, and avoid unconsidered actions." Mr. Barzel, following him, appealed also for "domestic calm."

Mr. Brandt admonished: "A crisis in the heads of the opposition is not a crisis of the state by a long shot." West Germany, he said. "remains socially and economically one of the most stable countries in the world."

He said the opposition "will regret abandoning the virtue of patience" by having called for a no-confidence vote

Thousands of workers and stuis it dents had already taken their feelings into the streets.

Six hundred city workers marched in Frankfurt, blocking traffic and threatening a general strike in the event that Mr. Barzel became chancellor. 12 nearby Offenbach, 600 transport workers went on strike stopping streetcars and buses for a while.

Other Rheinstahl workers laid down tools at the company's Muchlheim foundry. Several hundred garbage collectors stopped work in Hamborn, as did the miners at the Good Hope mine in Sterkrade and machinists at the Babcock plant in Oberhausen.

In West Berlin, the bulk of the city's power workers walked off the job to demonstrate for Mr. Brandt. They were joined by students.

"Stop Barzel and Strauss Now." was the slogan on many banners, referring to the opposition leader and his Bavarian ally, Franz-Josef Strauss.

Social Democratic party offices were besieged by citizens who sought membership as a demonstration of support for the government—over 3,000 in North Rhine-Westphalia and 1,500 in Hesse. The Free Democrats, junior partners in the Bonn condition, also reported a number of membership candidates. So did the opposition Christian Democratic Union, although it gave

For all the speaking striking and marching, it remained unclear how tomorrow's vote would go. The coalition acted as if it could withstand the onslaught or attempts by the opposition to win over enough deputies to topple the government.

"I feel sick to my stomach about this vote," said Udo Giuli-ni, a wealthy, 54-year-old conservative deputy from Heidelberg. "There is an odor of adventurism hanging about it."

"It's not my bill," said Karl Heinz Hansen, a 44-year-old Social Democrat from Dusseldorf. bottom. I will be polite enough to listen to the other side. But my conscience will be in my bottom and I will sit still when they call out my name." Many coalition deputies are expected to do the

By way of prelude to almost every speech he has ever made about the Vietnam war. President Nixon has been at pains to remind us, just for the record of the terrible legacy he inherited from the Democrats: over haif a million Americans in a combat role; casualties running at the rate of more than 300 a week killed in action; no plan to "Vietnamize" the war or to bring our military forces home. There is some truth in this, of course; Mr. Nixon did fall heir to a heavy burden not of his making. But the roots of involvement reached back into a Republican administration of which he was a part. There was also a plan to end the war which Gen. William Westmoreland could have furnished the new Nixon administration because he had laid it all out as early as November, 1967. For better or worse, "Vietnamization" was already in the official lexicon. And far more important, the really big, tough decisions had already been made by President Lyndon Johnson when he refused in March, 1968, to go on down the road of "graduated response," and decided instead to end the bombing of the North and to deny for the first time the next big commitment of American troops. In short, the Johnson strategy had failed by January. 1969, and the country had begun to accept the real limits of a limited war.

That lesson was also part of Richard Nixon's legacy if he had chosen to accept it. He was a free agent, in a way that his predecessor had never been, and not just because he was a new President with a mandate to end the war. He was a free man in the most significant sense because he had inherited not a bureaucratic monolith hellbent on pursuit of a discredited and unworkable policy, but a bureaucracy divided; there were other voices saying sensible and realistic things, other forces at work in the big departments of government which were there for the President to hear and to use in the difficult business of turning the governmental apparatus around on a new course. But President Nixon did not listen to these voices and never told us about them because he did not wish, for his own reasons and out of his own geo-political concepts, to abandon the old goals of our Vietnam mission. He did not want to accept the hard consequences of the lesson other men had learned. Those on the outside could only guess at the division within the government. only hear snatches of the argument, only speculate about the depth of the carefully suppressed reservations which were held by important people in key agencies—until this week when the hard evidence finally became available. That is the real and immensely profound significance of the "Kissinger Papers," the contents of which were revealed in some detail in this newspaper (and the International Herald Tribune). They tell us little that is directly relevant to the current situation. Rather, they describe an opportunity tragically lost. They tell us that by early 1969 only the very same people, who had made most of the miscalculation which carried us up to March of 1968 with a big war and no solution, still believed that the war in Vietnam was winnable in any practical sense. The Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the military command in Vietnam, and the diehards in the Salgon Embassy still believed this. But there was a considerable body of opinion that believed otherwise, that was prepared to support and reinforce a new, more realistic and more promising approach to Vietnam. By and large, the secretary of defense and the State Department and the CIA believed:

That the South Vietnamese showed little prospect of ever being able to conduct their end of the war without extensive American military support including the use of air power and combat troops; that pacification wasn't working and showed little hope of working over the long haul: that B-52s were a doubtful asset except for close-in tactical support of combat operations: that there was something to be said for promoting accommodations on the local level, in the districts and villages and provinces, between the government people and the Viet Cong; that neither this country's standing in the world nor the fate of Southeast Asia hinged on the outcome of the Vietnamese struggle. But Mr. Nixon ignored the best part of this counsel and so here we are, having dropped more bombs in the last three years than in all of the five years of the Johnson administration and having suffered more than one-third of all the American casualties that have been suffered in this war-and still with no solution. So it is no longer enough-now that we have seen the Kissinger Papers-to be told that this is not Mr. Nixon's fault because he didn't lead us into it. That's true; he didn't. But he had running room in early 1969—much more than we knew. And because he didn't use it, Mr. Nixon cannot be pictured any longer as the hapless prisoner of past policy. The message from the Kissinger Papers is plain. Just as the responsibility for the early Vietnam involvement and the later build-up may have been, progressively, Dwight D. Eisenhower's and John F. Kennedy's and Lyndon B. Johnson's, what we are now confronted with, for better or worse, is Richard M. Nixon's war.

THE WASHINGTON POST.

The White House released very little substantive information when it announced that Dr. Henry Kissinger on a four-day trip to Moscow had met with Soviet Communist party General-Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev and had discussed both the agenda for President Nixon's Moscow visit next month and problems arising from the current fighting

It is not philanthropy on Moscow's part that made it willing to receive Dr. Kissinger and to firm up the arrangements for receiving President Nixon even while some of the bloodiest fighting in the Vletnam war is in progress. The political utility to President Nixon of a successful visit to Moscow has often been remarked upon. Less often discussed is the fact that the Soviet leaders have their own reasons for wanting the President to visit them and for securing some lessening of Soviet-American tensions.

One major factor is Moscow's pressing need to reassure the Soviet people that it is successfully countering the new relationship between Peking and Washington. For the Soviet public, a Nixon reception in the Soviet Union will help ease the expressed Jears of a Sino-American alliance against the Soviet Union, fears raised by the Soviet press following the announcement last summer of the President's plan to visit

But beyond the Chinese factor, there is much the Soviet Union wants from the United States directly. More precisely, there is much that the dovish faction in the Kremlin hopes to get from the United States even though the Kremlin hawks have other priorities. Mr. Brezhnev has recently seemed closer to the Moscow doves than he appeared a year of two ago. To the most sensible people in the Soviet leadership, better relations with the United States would help to ease the expensive arms race, to assure a needed supply of feed grain for Soviet livestock and Soviet meat production in the years ahead, to secure more advanced American technology in the computer and other fields, and to enlist American capital in the gargantuan task of developing the rich resources of Siberia just across the Chinese President Nixon has some high cards to play when he visits the Soviet capital; and, related to that visit, it would be surprising if the Kissinger trip to Moscow had not added another chapter to the history of secret diplomacy about Vietnam. THE NEW YORK TIMES.

International Opinion

Fighting in Vietnam

The Americans are worried: the South Vietnamese have fled without fighting on several occasions. The reliance on the South Vietnamese Army resistance to the Communist offensive displayed by the allied high command in Saigon is progressively giving way to pessimism and discouragement. Some units are fighting brilliantly, but others behave much less well. This impression contradicts the distorted image of the evolution of the struggle given by Salgon. A typical example of Vietnamization failure signaled by the Americans is the loss of Hoai An. a city of 35,000 inhabitants near the coast in the high plateau area. Government troops abandoned the place virtually without fighting simply because bombings were becoming intensive. Some were in such a hurry to scamp that they refused to wait for the arrival of armed helicopters sent to protect their retreat. And the men who still had weapons threw them away to go faster. According to American journalists, among the reasons for the weakness of some South Vietnamese units is the incompetence of their generals and the lack of authority of

'Oh, Well, We All Have Our Cross To Bear!'

The Kissinger Story

By James Reston

NEW YORK—Henry Kissinger has got beyond the news. He is like most of the men of power in Washington: He is going to be left to the psychological

It is easy to criticize the role President Nixon has given Kissinger as principal foreign-policy adviser, negotiator and private spokesman in the White House. But leaving that aside for a moment, it is hard to deny Kissinger's obvious intelligence, unfailing discretion, and ceaseless

His latest secret trip to Moscow, following on his quiet and meticulous preparation of the President's mission to Peking, is only the most dramatic illustration of the confidence and power Nixon has entrusted to him. And it is a tribute to them both that this confidential relationship endures despite Kissinger's insistence on expressing his independent judgments, even when these go against the President's inclinations and decisions.

'Palace Guard'

Just before the White House announced that Kissinger had been conferring for four days with Brezhnev and Gromvko in Moscow, Rep. Morris K. Udall, D., Ariz., made a report to the House Civil Service Committee in which he accused Nixon of building up a "palace guard" of White House advisers who shape national policy without having to answer to either the Congress or the American people.

Well, it is true, and it is hard to deny, as Udall charged, that this growing system of private unaccountable power, protected by "executive privilege," goes against the spirit of separate and equal constitutional powers. Even Kisa with questions as a professor at Harvard, would agree that this is a valid constitutional question.

But there are human as well as constitutional questions involved here, and given the President's assignment, which would go to somebody else if not Kissinger, Kissinger's performance is beyond anything any other White House aide, from Poosevelt's Hopkins to Kennedy's Bundy or Johnson's Rostow, has been asked to sustain.

To master the details and complexities of the President's agenda in Peking and Moscow, to keep the summit meetings alive while American troops are in Taiwan and American bombers are over North Vietnam, to keep the fundamental differences straight and still find areas for agreement and common interest-all this is hard

But Kissinger has taken on other responsibilities almost as delicate and arduous. Somehow he has managed to keep a narrow line of communication open to President's critics in the universities, the Congress and the press. He has been loyal to the President, without ignoring or evading the opposition or assuming bad faith on the part of those who oppose the war,

Scalded

And this has not been easy. He has been scalded and vilified by many of his former university colleagues and even by some of his oldest friends in the university community, but he has heard them out. He has tried to get around the constitutional question and the charge that he was both powerful and unavailable by meeting privately with Chairman Fulbright of the Foreign Relations Committee and other members of the Congress and submitting himself to the most searching questions.

Even in the heart of these endless crises over the war and trade and monetary policy in the world, he has found time early in the morning before breakfast or late at night to listen to the passionate anxieties of the world he lived in before he got caught up, almost by accident, in the world of White House power.

And always, as he has said many times since he came to Washington, because he believes it is possible to act in a crisis with a divided country, but it is not possible to lead and get at the heart of the nation's problems without more trust than we have

He has been asked many times why he serves an administration whose policies divide the nation, why use all this intelligence and energy for all this pointless misery and death? But, for all his doubts about the bombing and his yearning for unity, he does not accept the premise and goes on believing in the President's objectives,

So many ugly things have been said about all this and even thrown in his teeth! He loves power, loves all the notoriety and secret trips in the night. and the opportunity to put thought to action in the Kremlin and the Forbidden City (who wouldn't?), but through it all he has attempted many things most of his colleagues in this administration have avoided, and rescued a certain respect others have

At the time of the invasion of Cambodia, two of his young men in the White House couldn't take it any longer, and not only resigned but felt that they had to explain to the press why. They stated their case but said they didn't want to be misunderstood. This was not an attack on Kissinger. They were going, but they felt it was important for him to stay and keep placing the options before the President as honestly as he always had.

All this is obviously subject to argument, beginning with Udall's question about whether even good and intelligent men should be given such power beyond reach of the Congress. But something still has to be said for Kissinger.

How he performs this delicate and dangerous role is a miracle which defies physical and intellectual endurance. He felt confident about the President's visit to Peking because he had been there and probed the quality of Chou En-lai's mind. A couple of weeks ago he was worried about the Moscow trip because he had no feeling about Brezhnev. Now, presumably, he has. But how he goes on at this pace is a mystery, and intelligent and tough as he is, maybe even a

We have a government now of men, not really of laws and accepted procedures. We have an alliance with Chou En-lai but not yet with China. But if this is the way it is to be, it is not Kissinger's fault, and he is a man. He is an instrument of the President, but he has played his role with astonishing cour-

In reference to the Canadian news article cited by Mr. Buckley (IHT, April 22) and Mr. Cate (Letters, April 21), I would like to offer the possibility of another interpretation of the discovery of a North Vietnamese Army tank driver chained to his seat. I was a U.S. Marine sergeant in Vietnam stationed along the DMZ from 1967 until 1969. We quite often engaged regular elements of the North Vietnamese Army. I can attest to their motivation and fierce combativeness. During my tour I found several isolated instances of individuals who were tled, not chained to their weapons. It was the opinion in my unit that this was done voluntarily as the ropes could have easily been untied. It appeared to have been an act to symbolize their desire to remain at their post and to prohibit themselves from panicking and being disgraced. I feel this is a more reasonable explanation. DHILADELPHIA.—The voters of Massachusetts and Pennsylvania did little to clarify the contest for the Democratic presidential nomination on Tuesday

To every seeming victory and every seeming defeat there ching a qualification. The message to the rest of the nation was as confused as those from the earlier primaries.

Sen Edmund S. Muskie of Maine once the frontrunner, ran weakly in the popularity contest in both states. But he appeared likely to win enough delegates in Pennsylvania-perhaps more than any other single candidate—to avoid elimination and press on to the Ohio primary next Tuesday.

"We've turned the corner," the Maine senator said as the delegates were tallied here in Philadelphia, "We've leveled off, and we're on the way back uphill

In a telephone call to his workers in Boston, where the results gave him little cause for cheer, Muskie promised to compete not only in Ohio, but also in Michigan, California, and New York. Sen. On the other hand, his support in this state was nar-rowly based. It was concentrated in the suburbs and near college campuses and trailed off badly in blue-collar and black neighborhoods. There's no place where we can see weakness," McGovern said when asked about this problem. He was talking mainly about Massachusetts, where he had concentrated his campaign and where he said he had won "a very spectacular victory tonight."

'Secret Ads' On French TV Under Fire

Long-Awaited Study Released by Senate

By James Goldsborough PARIS, April 26 (IET), The French Senate's long-awaited exposé on "secret advertising" on television was punctuated today by some secret advertising televised from the very room where the Senate was giving its

This slight contretemps lightened the unveiling of a 239-page study in which the Senate, the mayerick of French politics, accused the state-run networks of rarious forms of kickbacks and bribery—characterized variously as "immoral, venal, deceitful hateful and prevaricating."

The report—produced despite what centrist Sen. Andre Diligent called the government's humor"—tended to show that various behind-thethrough scenes manipulations a state-run advertising agency has been promoting secret advertising for its customers

"Pure corruntion." said Mr. Diligent.

The secret advertising's de-scription included allusions to mustard pots and wine bottles shown on kitchen tables, ski brand names: cameramen's focusing, for a slight remuneration, on a particular sign or scene during sports events, and even paid publicity presented as locumentary films

The report, which has been in preparation for several months, has once again thrust the Senate. France's oft-forgotten upper house, onto center stage.

President Georges Pompidou has disapproved of the special commissions set up by the sens-tors, and during his last meeting the Senate he told them that they were infringing on executive prerogative. Under the Prench system, he said, which is "half-presidential, half-parliamentary," the Senate "could not play the same role that it plays in the United States."

None of this has slowed down the senators. Today's report, however, with its direct accusas, is expected to be received coolly by the government.

The senators charged that these TV practices had been going on for years, even before paid advertising was introduced on television in 1969. Not only did special products get special treatment, which, the report said, represented "embezzlement of public funds," but other unhealthy practices were allowed, such as free plane rides.

It also mentioned payments to advertising agencies which helped organize television drives for such things as aid to Biafra, handicapped children and medical research. The agencies' fees were based on how much money the campaign raised.

The report listed plenty of names of various people connected with the secret advertising, and already some of them have denounced the senators for intruding into something that is allegedly none of their business.

Following the press conference television reporter asked if the senators realized that a mineral water bottle with a very visible label had been on display to cameras throughout the proceedings.

"It is an inevitable incident."
responded Sen. Henri Caillavet, admitting the point. "Not every-thing can be hidden . . . but such things should not be or-ganized, cultivated. It is that that we are opposing."

China Will Lend Malta £17 Million Repayable by '94

VALLETTA, April 26 (Reuters).

—Prime Minister Dom Mintoff announced in Malta's House of Representatives tonight that China has agreed to provide an interest-free loan of £17 million in the six years between May 1 of this year and April 30, 1978.

The loan has no conditions attached to it, Mr. Mintoff declared. He said that £15,237,000 would be in the form of development projects provided by the Chinese government, including the neces-sary equipment and technical assistance The remaining £1,693,000 would be cash provided during 1972, he said.

Mr. Mintoff said that Malta will repay the loan with commodities exported to China, The government will pay between May 1, 1984, and April 30, 1994, onetenth of the amount each year,

To Prove Party's Fairness

Italian Communists Point With Pride to 'Red' Bologna

By Paul Hofmann

BOLOGNA, Italy, April 26 ONYT).—Anti-Communist orators in election rallies in the medieval plazza of this city talk a lot about Czechoslovakia these days. And Communist campaigners all over Italy talk a lot about Bologna, which is governed by Communists.

"Interpretation of Dubcek" is the name of a play at the Duse Theater here. The play, by Luigi Preti, former finance minister and a militantly anti-Communist Social Democrat, retraces the rise and fall of the liberal secretary of the Czechoslovak Communist party, Alexander Dubcek.

The play's message: Don't be-lieve that Communism has a human face, even in Bologna. At the same time, Communist candidates in Rome, Naples, Palermo and many other places throughout the country are tell-ing their audiences: "Compare the mess in your city with popular government in Bologna—Red Bologna has better schools, a more equitable municipal tax system, much less real-estate speculation, more parks and cleaner streets than any other center in Italy."

Hard to Dispute

It is hard to dispute these claims. This prosperous regional capital of 500,000 inhabitants, the largest Communist-governed com-munity in Western Europe, is the No. 1 project of what might be called the model-cities program of the Italian Communist party. Now, at the height of the campaign for the general elections on May 7 and 8, Bologna's vaunted tidiness has suffered somewhat—huge signs span the streets and the flood of posters and handbills threatens to submerge

But even the casual visitor is struck by the civic pride of the Bolognese and by the city's achievements in preserving the historical center with a care for beautiful old buildings and surroundings, a program rarely matched elsewhere in Italy.

Communist Bulwark

This city and the surrounding region of Emilia-Romagna have been a bulwark of Communism since the end of World War II. Communists point to Bologna as the leading success story of what they consider their party's broad-minded, level-headed administra-

"In Bologna and Emilia," says Renato Zangheri, the mayor and a professor at the city's 800-year-old university, "we Communists have proved that we know how to govern democratically, respect-ing the autonomy of all political and social forces."

Indeed, the Communist city government has tried for several years to involve its opponents and moderates in municipal affairs. It tries to rule by consensus rather than seek confrontations. This soft-line style of Bolognese Communism has recently reaped some successes.

DINING OUT Five Small Houses On a Stockholm Street

By Jan Sjöby

STOCKHOLM (IET).—The Python block (all Swedish city blocks have official names) in Stockholm's Old Town has a long tradition as a good place to wine and dine, It is known that the Widow Lindberg operated a speakeasy in one of the tiny houses in 1694. Competing for ber clientele of sailors and stevedores was an anonymous groom from the nearby royal stables, who ran an equally unlicensed place a few doors away. In 1740, a vintner named Langström opened the respectable and legal

"Three Princes" and it appears to have stayed in business well into the 19th century.

Then, in the late 1960s, explorers from a Swedish restaurant consortium set out spelunking in the barrel vaults under the Python block. The cellars of the Old Town are like the catacombs of Rome or the sewers of Paris -one never knows where the maze ends. The surveyors found piles of firewood and coal, rusting bicycles and empty bottles along with fine, centuries-old masonry. They also found labyrinthian premises under five little houses along the Nygrand side of the block, an excellent setting for a first-class restaurant. The municipal board of health agreed and a team of architects, interior designers, carpenters and brickmasons went to work. In 1969, the restaurant Fem Sma Hus (Five Little Houses, opened. 'Sesame Street' Makes Debut in Yugoslavia from faraway "Sesame Street" made their debut last week on Yugoslav television, amid some adult skepticism but plenty of enthusiasm among younger view-

By Dan Morgan

"I just knew that pretty little duck was made of rubber," said a 7 1/2-year-old to his father. after watching the first of 13 trial-run episodes from the American children's educational series, renamed "Sezam Ulica" for Yugoslav audiences.

The boy's father was Miroliub Jevtovic, director of educational programming for Belgrade television, and his son's reaction vindicated his belief that Yugoslavia could profit from the American "approach to know-ledge through educational games."

Not everybody in the business of media education in Yugoslavia agrees that the program is right for local audiences. But Sesame's first full-fledged test in a Communist country is focusing attention on the way the East Europeans have begun to apply new teaching technologies.

Polish television has likewise acquired the serial, to the surprise of some U.S. officials in Warsaw who think its portrayal of black and white children playing and learning happily together on a typical street is good advertising for America.

Response

Sesame's adaptation for Yugoalay audiences has evoked strong response on both sides among programmers. It was obtained for a nominal cost from Children's Television Workshop. which has received support from the U.S. government and private foundations.

"It's true some of our professors are against the idea of an electronic monster," says Mr. Jevtovic. "I met some people who say Sesame is rubbish, that it's not for intellectual children. say, the people who made it understand children. . . . They believe children can understand symbols and metaphor. We are in competition for the curiosity of man, of children. We have to use art to increase the percentage of that curiosity that is turned to education." Lierka Dianicsic, Zagreb television's educational television planner, is not so sure. "T like 'Sesame Street' very much," says Mrs. Dianjesic, who has observed educational television in the United States and talked with Sesame's producers.

BELGRADE (WP).—Burt, Ernie scientific approach. But it was and the rest of their buddies made to serve certain problems in a certain social setting. Transferred it can't work. The Sesame people were selling an idea and an approach.

Humor

"It was that or lose three wonderful voices," says Belgrade's Dragan Babic, who adapted it He believes children will have no trouble and that American huncis close to Yugoglav, much more so than French or British.

Perhaps in deference to skepticism among teachers, the prograin is not shown as part of inschool television fare but during children's prime afternoon time. But Mr. Jevtovic hopes it can be part of the educational fare by 1973, with at least one dubbed version in color.

Television programmers both in Belgrade and Zagreb concede they have had real trouble getting teachers interested in the porsibilities of the medium, and in coordinating their work with school officials.

There is no cable television in Yugoslavia and educational programs beamed to the morning and afternoon school shifts 185 minutes in Croatia, 30 minutes in Serbia) are sent over the regular commercial channel Closed circuit exists in a few places but is not being used properly, say specialists, and there is also a campaign on to encourage more schools to buy sets.

"Serious" television has no trouble appealing to adults. The poet Dusan Radovic's chats with housevives about husbands and wife relationships have been a favorite, and programs on health are also followed carefully. Young Yugoslav directors and producers have for several years been giving an exciting demonstration of what can be done with the medium to interest children in after-school time. For instance, the program "Dvogled" (binoculars), by Babic and Liuba Reumovic in Belgrade, is a "journal for youth covering everything in the world." They have discussed death. with a cometery as the section. and "interviewed" an aunt traveling from Vienna to the Black Sea on the Danube. But in each is to get away from convention. "What they mean in the schools by teaching is not always what we mean." he adds. Regrettably, says Mrs. Dianjesic, the problem in getting television accepted has been as much lack of school receptivity as inadequate technology. Only 15 minutes of the educational block beamed by Zagreb is for preschool children, and she would like to do more. Nobody knows how much of the educational time, which covers natural sciences, humanities, foreign languages and some in-service training for teachers, is actually used in the schools. but the feeling is that it is is too little Television itself is common place everywhere in Eastern Europe, and families have long been in the habit of gathering around their sets for an American cos-

DARIS, April 26 (IHT).—The Méridien at the Porte Maillot has just opened, adding 1,023 hotel rooms to bed-hungry Paris. Owned by a subsidiary of Air France, the nine-story hotel is the largest in the country and according to a spokesman for the chain, it is the largest on the Continent.

The French to describe their progress are fond of a phrase, la France bouge (France is moving). The Méridien is an example not only of France on the move, but the world. The hotel primarily is geared for businessmen and COUPS.

Big business has its choice of 10 air-conditioned conference rooms whose dimensions can be accordeoned to accommodate 30 to 800 persons, depending on requirements. There are loudspeakers every five meters and a permanent system installed in the flooring which allows for simultaneous translations in six lan-must be up-to-the-minute. Television can be controlled from the bedside and an inside channel projects the films shown on Air France planes. Room service runs around the clock and it is possible to have a hot meal at 4 a.m. The rooms are small and anonymous but the closet space is adequate and the mattresses are good.

The telephone system, bane of every Parisian, promises to be as much as any traveling tycoon can hope for. There are 32 lines and direct dialing from every bedroom. A flashing light on the indicates a message. A carbon of the note in your box is alipped under your door. If you outline your trail to the operator, she will make every effort to locate you in any of the far-flung reaches of the hotel. Nobody can deny the advantages of good message service.

It is assumed that group travelers wish they were individual travelers. A special courtyard has been designed for the arrival of buses and special elevators exist for whisking a mass load of luggage out of sight. Separate counters have been set up for group registrations and the paying of bills.

Welcome Drink

This is a blessing for the lone wolf who certainly doesn't want to queue up behind a pack of 200. Furthermore, the management hopes that group travelers by the time they hit the lobby-will feel as individual as anybody else. By that time, the single standard has been re-established and everybody is treated to a welcome drink . . . chempagne or fruit

To inject a note of personality, the Méridien chose concierges who have worked at the George V and the Plaza-Athénée. Manager Pierre Monnet is supplying every room with a brochure indicating the sights to be seen in the vicinand a complimentary métro ticket to encourage you to get out into Paris. A lot of Paris shopping has been brought into the hotel, including such attractions as a boutique of Pierre Balmain, a hairdressing branch of Jacques Dessange, leather goods by Cassegrain, a boutique of Printemps, an Hachette bookstore, an Avis carrental agency, etc. The shopping arcades are a deluxe, avantgarde version of the style ploneered by le Drug Store. The hotel has five restaurants, all serviced by a mammoth, modern central kitchen. The restaurants range from classic French to Japanese. The latter is a bow to the increasing numbers of Japanese businessmen The Méridien is not Eliot Paul's Describing "Akty" as a collage, an academy official said that the work is a play "which represents the trends of contemporary Polish theater—although it is a trend which has not received particular exposure-dealing with the role of the fallen liberal."

"Akty" was produced by the leading Krakow director Jerzy Jarocki. It explores the problems of an individual's world view pitted against the demands of tradition and society. The four acts revolve around the common theme of commitment to one's self, to ideals or to a prevailing order. Japan Sees Its Reserves On Decline

Expects Drop in April Of Up to $200 Million

TOKYO, April 26 (AP-DJ) .--TOKYO, Aparese Finance Ministry expects the country's official cies, gold and special drawing rights to show a decline of hetween $100 million and $200 milcilion at the end of April from the 110n at the cast of the corded at the end of March.

This was disclosed by the ministry today at a meeting of the international finance protlems committee, an advisory body composed of bankers, businessmen and a cade micians, Japanese press reports said. Ministry officials confirmed the reports as being generally accu-

In Flow Offset

The reports said that although another substantial current account balance of payments surplus is expected in April, the ministry expects this inflow of doilars to be offset by the following developments:

• The Bank of Japan has deposited about $200 million with commercial banks to help them repay overseas indebtedness.

• The central bank has sold sn additional $200 million to --- commercial banks in line with a - recent expansion of preferentialir port financing.

Bank of Japan intervention in the Tokyo foreign exchange market in April has been infrequent because special export loans extended to small business in December have been falling due, creating a demand for

• The central bank bought an unspecified amount of medium and long-term U.S. bonds in April in line with the ministry's plan to increase the yield on dollars held by the govern-ment. Bonds with a maturity of over one year do not count in a country's official reserves under international accounting conven-

A Bit Critical

Members of the committee were reported to have been ment moves regarding Japan's reserves, saying that greater efforts should be made to correct the basic cause of excesalve dollar inflows: the country's continuing huge trade surplus.

Japanese businessmen have recently criticized government measures to reduce the apparent size of the official reserves as counter-productive in some respects. For instance, they argued, large Japanese loans to the World Bank this year and last year have been an indirect stimulant to Japanese exports, as a good part of these funds is used by the recipient countries. to buy Japanese equipment.

U.S. Ruling Irks Brown Boveri

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Brown Boveri says it will contest "with every means available" a ruling by the U.S. Tariff Commission that the Swiss equipment manufac-turer illegally dumped high-power transformers on the U.S. market. The ruling announced last week against Brown Boveri and other European and Japanese manufacturers resulted from a complaint filed in March 1970 by Westinghouse Electric Corp. Brown Boveri says the manner in which the commission's investigation was con-ducted and its interpretation of anti-dumping legislation convinced it that it had been accused 'unjustly' of unfair price practices. The com-pany adds it will contest any attempt to have a dumping duty imposed on its imports.

ENI Oil Output Halted in Libya

Oil production at Ente Nazionale Idrocarburia Libyan concession has been completely halted following the Libyan government's ban on exports pending an agreement on crude prices, informed sources report. GE Wins U.K. Trademark Fight

General Electric Co. (GE), of the United States, has won its appeal to the House of Lords against a court decision that its trademark should be removed from Britain's trademark register. The removal had been sought by General Electric Co. (GEC), which contended that the GE trademark would be confused with its own. The Lords held that while the court was correct in finding that the GE and the GEC trademarks were likely to be confused, the relevant question is whether the tikelihood of confusion was caused by a blame-worthy act of GE, and found no such act in-

U.S.-make car sales advanced 23.9 percent on a daily selling rate basis in mid-April. The jump more than offset a sales decline in the early April period and put sales for the first two-thirds of the month 2.1 percent ahead of a year earlier. Auto makers said their dealers sold a total of 253,522 cars in mid-April, up from 188,953 in the period a year before. Sales from April 1 to April 20 totaled 460,043, compared with 450,626

SAAB-Scania Reported in Iraq Deal

SAAB-Scania has signed a cooperation agreeent with Iraq to supply a truck and bus assembly plant, Swedish press reports say. The agreement, which will run for 10 years, calls for Scania to deliver parts for truck and bus chassis. Assembling and selling will be handled by Iraq. The first assembled truck will reportedly be delivered by Oct. 1, and an estimated 500 vehicles will be produced during the first year.

ZURICH, April 28 (AP-DJ).— the same will occur under the system will promote the use of The decision of the European Economic Community and its future members to limit fluctuations among their currencies is likely to weaken an already tenuous control over the money supplies inside Europe, some observers suggest.

There is already evidence that uncontrolled expansion of the Eurodollar market in the past few years contributed to the rise in European business activity, inflation and stock prices.

new EEC currency arrangements. though the culprit this time might be the deutsche mark or sterling, and not the dollar.

Basically, what the European nations have done is to put their currencies on a similar basis to the dollar. The currencies will be used for intervention in foreign exchange markets; some perhaps more than others will be held as central bank reserves, thus serving the function of a reserve currency.

OECD Predicts U.S. Deficit In Payments Will Fall in '72

First signs of improvement in the U.S. current balance of payments, resulting from last December's in the U.S. balance of payments ably be perceived during the second half of 1972, forecasts of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD)

Because of the extent of exchange rate changes and related trade flows of different countries, about 50 percent of the counterpart of the adjustment process is expected to show up in Japan's current account, and one-third in that of West Germany.

For the first time the OECD has taken special drawing rights (SDRs) as the unit of measuring its balance of payments forecasts The figures are to be submitted to its economic policy committee which begins a 2-day meeting here tomorrow.

The U.S. current balance of payments is forecast to show & deficit of 2.1 billion SDRs, on a seasonally-adjusted annual rate, during the second half of this year, down from an estimated 3.4 billion in the first half. During the first half of 1973, the deficit is expected to drop to 1.4 billion

Japan's surplus current balance during the second half of 1972 is placed at 6.7 billion SDRs, down from 7.1 billion during the first half. The surplus is likely to decline to 6.4 hillion SDRs during the first half of 1973. Germany probably will swing from a small surplus in the first half of 1972 to a deficit of 600 million SDRs in the second half of the same year, and 700 million in the first half of 1973. The OECD report points out

PARIS, April 26 (AP-DJ).- that confidence in world markets are apparent.

> The dollar's inconvertibility, at least until the United States achieves a reasonably strong external position, will probably put unusual strains on international trade, it says.
> It warns of continued dangers of protectionism and the possible emergence of economic blocs, and urges members to agree on a reduction of tariff and other trade

Growth of the real gross national product in major member countries is set to increase steadily up to the second half of 1973. By then, the United States, Canada and Britain, which now have considerable unemployed resources. are likely to have moved nearer full employment, the report says. Although inflation is likely to be significantly more moderate in the next year or so, the rate will continue to be uncomfortably high, the report adds.

Trade Surplus Drops in March In W. Germany

WASHINGTON, April 26 (AP). -The government's list of lead-ing economic indicators showed a strong gain last month, pointing the way to continued economic expansion, the Commerce Department said today. A department composite index of leading indicators, which tend to presage how the economy will fare in the future, increased by 0.9 percent in March, up from the upward-revised February advance of 0.7 percent. Harold C. Passer, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Affairs, said the index has increased an average of about 1 per-cent per mouth in the last six months. It is "a clear signal that economic expansion will continue,"

Of the eight indicators available for March, five improved and three declined.

Improving were industrial material prices, stock prices, new factory orders for durable goods. contracts and orders for plant and equipment, and the ratio of prices to unit labor costs. Mr. Passer noted that the index.

U.S. to Help U.K. Repay IMF Loan

what brokers called "moderate

WASHINGTON, April 26 /AP-DJ).-U.S. Treasury Under Sec-retary Paul Volcker said today he is hopeful that arrangements can be completed "within the next few days" for a British government loan repayment to the International Monetary Fund

(IMF). Mr. Volcker indicated the United States is considering a currency drawing from the INF to facilitate the repayment of about $1 billion in British borrowings.

Mr. Volcker did not say how large a currency drawing the United States might make at the IMP to provide the British with acceptable foreign currencies in exchange for dollars as part of the loan repayment package.

The official also indicated that a new group of 20 nations will be created within a few weeks to discuss international monetary reforms.

We graduated from one of the world's toughest business schools

California. One of the wealthiest states in the USA. With a phenomenal rate of expansion in agriculture, commerce, and international trade. And an industrial growth so diverse that it comprehends both movie making and space projects.

California has grown to be one 🥡 of the world's most dynamic economies.

And Security Pacific Bank has been doing business there for over one hundred years.

So when it comes to understanding the needs of an expanding multinational company we're in a rather special position. Because during that time we've learnt some good hard facts about expansion. From practical experience.

Firstly, when a bank services growing corporations, it's got to be alive and growing itself. So while California has been expanding, we've been keeping pace with it.

Our first tiny branch office in Los Angeles has grown into one of the two largest branch systems within the USA.

We're now financial partner to 90 of the top 100 corporations in America.

And we're also one of the ten largest American banks, with assets of over nine billion dollars (that's a growth of three billion dollars over the last three

Then, because our clients are doing business in a rapidly expanding economy, we know that our time is your money. So we act fast. To make sure you get the best possible advantage from a medium-term Euro-currency loan, as quickly as possible. And, of course, once we've negotiated a loan we follow it up with continual counselling.

And lastly, because our clients are multinational, we offer them a multinational service. Our international network covers the most important financial centres of the world, from South America to Australia, from the Far East to Europe.

And each one of our international offices combines an inside working knowledge of the economic climate of its own country with the special experience we've gained from California's dynamic economy.

Because, above all, an expanding company needs a bank that understands expansion. And we've learnt that from California. At first hand.

Report from a big Swiss bank

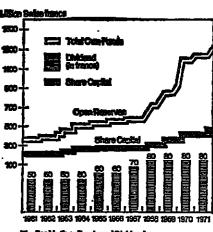

Despite epoch-making events on the political and monetary fronts and a plunge in interest rates, Credit Suisse again turned in a handsome performance during 1971.

In the past twelve months the international monetary system underwent radical changes which left their mark on the workings of the Euromarket and national finance markets. Credit Suisse had to prove its ability to move quickly and flexibly; thanks to more than a century's experience the Bank accomplished these adjustments successfully.

The balance sheet total on December 31, 1971: more than S.Fr. 31,000 million The Bank's business volume continued to grow vigorously. The balance sheet total rose by S.Fr. 3,000 million to reach S.Fr. 31,000 million. Deposits climbed steadily. Foreign exchange dealings, the new issues business and securities trading once again increased sharply in volume. This continuation of the Bank's growth reflects its dynamic policies and confirms the confidence placed in Credit Suisse by its worldwide clientele.

Credit Suisse opens new branch offices in London and in Nassau

Credit Suisse has adapted its organization to cope with the rapid expansion of its Swiss and international business. A number of new branch offices have been opened in Switzerland, the London Representative Office has been changed into a full branch office and a new branch has begun operations in Nassau (Bahamas). The Representative Office network has been further extended to include Singapore and Tokyo. With three specialised security business subsidiaries in New York, Montreal and in the Bahamas, Credit Suisse has 17 foreign outlets and over 90 branches in Switzerland.

Tradition with Elansince 1856

Established in 1856, Credit Suisse is one of Switzerland's leading big banks. Grounded in solid tradition, yet dynamic in its up-todate methods, Credit Suisse still gives its customers the same sound all-round service in the fields of commercial and investment banking which brought it its international reputation.

Represented all over Switzerland and in the leading financial centres.

Many contracts that seem to have good chances of success, judging from the offensive oldding, do not look as promising when the opposing bidding is taken into account.

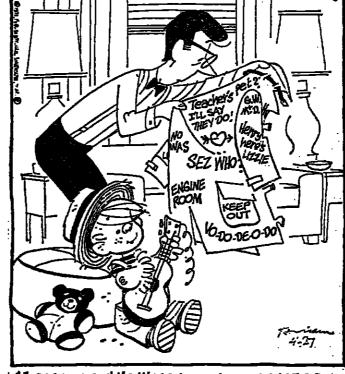

On the diagramed deal, for example, South's six spades depend largely on the spade finesse, a 50 percent chance. However, considering that East opened three hearts pre-emptively, chances are much less than 50-50 that he has the spade king. Fortunately for the declarer, he had a few other possibilities and was able to capitalize on one of crafty new novel: In a large building, "a few versts east of the capital" is "a sparsely furnished room with a notable absence of windows." Inside the room, Comrade V. sits at a console that resembles a large officemodel typewriter, which, like the walls, is white. Comrade V. has lost track of the time he has been in this building; he knows only that he was brought there blindfolded and under heavy sedation. "Each afternoon, directly after lunch, he has an ap-pointment with the doctor. On these occasions they discuss anything that happens to come into his mind, and especially the printout, his case history, in other words, himself... It is understood that they do not discuss the circumstances of his being there." I'll tell you that Comrade V. is nevertheless very curious to know why he is there—and so are we. So when the latest printout begins to emerge from the white console—the printout headed "The Case History of Comrade V."—we read it eagerly over V.'s shoulder, as it were.

And it reveals the following: Comrade V. is a professor of mathematics at the University of , and a particularly brilliant and distinguished professor of mathematics, to be sure. But unfortunately certain psychological shocks in his childhoodchiefly the death of his peace-officer father "on the occasion of a barroom altercation"—seem to have thwarted V.'s emotional development. At an early age, he withdrew emotionally, became abstract, closed "off subjective truths by mathematics." At his father's funeral, he sat dry-eyed. and observed to his mother "that the seating frequency of mourners from the front to the rear of the nave appeared to make up a bimodal distribution."

But beneath this abstractness, the printout continues there festered a "silent and sullen conflict with immediate figures of authority... The Oedipal meta-phor undoubtedly applies." It was this unconscious conflict that led Comrade V. to commit the disturbing but forgivable error of articulating at a mathematics conference in Sweden certain statements contrary to the "dipomatic pesture of that time." And it was this same conflict that caused V., following his appoint-ment to a consulting post of major responsibility in the National Bureau of Statistical Analysis, not only to miscalculate certain statistics on the barley harvest, but also to resist correcting his mistakes when asked to do so by his superiors.

But what led Comrade V. to his lamentable breakdown and consequent "hospitalization" was his decision to accept sabbatical leave from his university post and undertake to write in the guise of an academic tome on symbolic logic "a scathing and subtle in-

I will tell you that Comrade V. does not agree with the print. out's version of his story. And that, although it is difficult (both V. and us readers) to resist the printout's subtly persuasive logic, we come to sympathize with V.'s predicament; to believe that he was, as he says, only fighting for intellectual freedom in totalitarian society; and to be convinced that despite Vis heroic efforts to hold on, "they" are driving him insane.

As V. records in his diary, when he first heard about "detention like this, I had nightmarish visions. I pictured myself on a table or a slab in a white any septic room... I saw myself strapped down by attendants The doctor came and administered a long hypodermic to my arm. ... Perhaps they would blind me or plack out my eyes... I might be castrated or sexually impaired... (Butl not one of these things happened... No hypoder-mics at all. Only the little pills. . I have never been so relaxed in my life... I am too re-laxed to be angry..."

But I'll tell you no more of Mr. Sloan's plot than this. I will add only that the situation pictured here is not at all what it seems to be: that the stimulation of this cerebral thriller lies in the way Mr. Sloan keeps collapsing reality around us; and that despite its somewhat hyperintellectual quality and the overtrickiness of its ending. I lay awake after finishing it, trying to. figure out who in it is same, and who is crazy; what is sanity, what is madness; who are the doctors, who are the patients... and, by the way, what is James Park Sloan planning to write

Phils' Carlton On One-Hitter

NEW YORK, April 26 (UPI).-Steve Carlton appreciates the remodeling job done at Candlestick Park. The lefthander of the Philadelphia Phillies shut out the San Francisco Giants, 3-0, on one hit last night for his third straight victory. Chris Speler, the Giants' first batter of the game, singled to center and then Carlton slammed the door.

"This was a perfect night in which to pitch," said the 27-yearold southpaw who came to the Phils from the St. Louis Cardinels in a trade for Rick Wise in February.

"Usually, it's too windy out here in Candlestick and I was 0-5 pitching in this park. But now the completed stands have cut down the wind considerably and the weather was just cool enough to help me."

Carlton fanned 14 Giants to tie a Phillie record for strikeouts by a lefthanded pitcher. He walked only one batter, Chris Arnold in the sixth inning, while extending his string of scoreless innings to 18. Carlton shares the majorleague record of 19 strikeouts in

Excellent Control

"I wasn't as overpowering as I was when I fanned 19 of those Mets," said Carlton. "But I had good location tonight and my control was excellent. I worked real easy and was able to concentrate better without that wind whirling around me."

Giants manager Charlie Fox said, "He's the best pitcher I've seen so far this year. He probably wasn't behind two hitters all night. Sixty-five to 75 percent of his pitches were strikes."

The loser was Juan Marichal, whose won-lost record fell to 1-2. He allowed the Phillies only one run and two hits through seven innings. The first Phillies' run scored in the fifth on a pair of walks, a sacrifice and a sacrifice fly by Denny Doyle. Deron Johnson's bases-loaded single scored two more Philadelphia runs in the eighth.

-mon since tuden's lib organications have complained about our weather people naming hurri-

Buchwald canes after women. I spoke to Prof. Fritz Folgelhammer, one of the leading hurrecane catchers in the United States, who said that while he is sympathetic to the complaints of some women, he feels it is impossible to describe hurricanes except in feminine terms.

"The hurricane, as you know, is a storm over water attaining diameters of several hundred miles, following a curved path away from the equator. When fully developed, these tropical cyclones can cause untold damage to shipping and the shoreline. The cold, dry air mixing with the warm, moist air and my wife, Gretchen." moving in a circular pattern can come up without warning. "Any man who is married can appreciate why we have named our hurricanes after women." "It does seem to fit," I agreed.

"We name our hurricanes in hopes of personalizing them so people will pay attention to where the hurricanes are going. If we named them after men, no one would care about them until it was too late. If you called your hurricanes Max or Charley or Arthur or Spire, they would be ignored. But when you say nurricane Agnes is on her way, people immediately start battening down the hatches."

"You're saying that people are more afraid of women than they are of men?"

"Yes, especially during storm

"T've seen it happen." I said. "It's impossible to get the same storm effect in a man, A man's anger may begin as a hurricane, but it usually blows out to sea before it reaches typhoon conditions.

"How do you explain that?"

"Well, women tend to store up tremendous atmospheric pressure during the daytime when they are dealing with the house and the children. As soon as the husband comes home from work, all this pressure is sud-denly released, causing large vortical circulations on all the frontal zones. During these storms most men try to head for the basement for safety, but they very rarely make it." "So that's why they decided to name hurricanes after women!" "I don't want you to think it was premeditated. What happened was that quite some time ago a weatherman named Mc-Alphin stationed down in Key West spotted a hurricane coming up from Cuba. He immediately called his superior in Miami to report it. The superior asked him to describe the hurricane to him, and McAlphin, without thinking, said. It looks just like

"The superior sent a message to Washington on his telex announcing that a hurricane named Gretchen was about to hit the Florida coast. This information was released to the press who, in the past, had refused to give much space to hurricanes. But now with a name on it, a feminine name at that, all the papers picked up the story. The weather people were so pleased they decided to name all their hurricanes from that day on after women." "Then there was nothing sexist in the decision?" "Of course not. We're all serious people. Everyone knows a hurricane is a feminine phenomenon. There is no other scientific way to describe it. When we get a protest about naming a hurricane after a woman, it inevitably comes from conditions. An angry woman is someone who has never personally like a hurricane. When the seen one."

Director Robert Wise whose · film "Two People" is being shot in Morocco and Normandy.

Always Being Second

ST. GATTEN. France (IHT).—When making a film on location everyone talks about the weather and no one does anything about it except to wait for it to change.

Robert Wise has been through more weather than most directors: in Taipei for "The Sand Pebbles" he had six or seven alternative locations a day; for "The Sound of Music" he went $1 million over budget (mere pennies in view of the film's profits) because of Salzburg's endless rains.

When you film on location you listen to the weather people, get the best advice and make the wrong decision," says Mr. Wise, a genial Malibu-based Hoosier. "The strongest quality needed is boundless patience." Wise has it: "He never loses his temper, he's my hero," says production manager Reggie Callow fervently.

Mr. Wise has been making his latest film, "Two People." mostly in Morocco, an experience over which a yashmak might discreetly be drawn. The weather in Normandy, where St. Gatien airport has been transformed into Casablanca and a throng of unemployed locals has been clad in djellabahs, has been typically capricious.

But weather changes are nothing compared to the script changes Mr. Wise may have to make before "Two People" comes out in December. The story (which stars Peter Fonda, Estelle Parsons and Lindsay Wagner) is about a U.S. Army deserter who leaves Morocco to return to New York to face

Screenwriter Richard DeRoy has been suggesting alternative scenes as attitudes in the U.S. change toward deserters, and toward the war itself. One line alone exists in three Doesn't it change things, we're out of the war?

Doesn't it change things, we're supposed to be out of the war?
Doesn't it change things, we're supposed to be getting out of the war?

Political

Neither Mr. Wise's age group nor his distinguished record would suggest that this four-time Oscar winner is among today's protesting film-makers, but he feels strongly that "Two People" is a political film:

'It's political in terms of the war and what's happened. the forces around the world that keep people from getting together and from doing what they should be doing. At the end of this picture the Peter Fonda character should be having a wife and kids instead of going to spend five years in prison."

Since Robert Wise tends to submerge his own personality to the project at hand, his work lacks the quirks that would make the French call him an auteur, but Wise does consider himself the author of his films: "The director who puts it together and produces it is the author of a film." This does not mean that Wise, a non-writer, underestimates the importance of the script:

"The script is the basic problem because it's the major decision. We never get over the basic strengths and weaknesses of that decision no matter who's in your picture of where you make it."

"Two People" is the most intimate film Robert Wise has made, the direct opposite of his latest release, "The Andromeda Strain," a cool, highly technical science fiction work. It is also

"Budgets got to ridiculous proportions," he says. "I was responsible for some of that myself."

Live," an anti-capital punishment drama starring Susan Hayward. Peter Fonda's favorite Wise films are a horror film, "The Haunting," and "The Body Snatcher" with Boris Karloff. Prench film buffs especially admire "Executive Suite," while the costly bomb.

Born in Winchester, Indiana, Robert Wise was still in his teens when he went into films. He began as an apprentice sound effects cutter at RKO, then moved up to film editor. He edited "Citizen Kane" and "The Magnificent Ambersons."

Pauline Kael's book on "Citizen Kane" was, Mr. Wise says, "as fresh to me as it was to most people." Even while working on the film, he says, one knew it would be something special:
"We didn't know it was as great as it turned out to be because you can't predict what people will think 30 years later—but we knew it was great. We had to see that from the
